THE SITUATION

A small, successful IT firm in the South has been turning a profit for the last 10 years. Operating out of 11 regional offices, they specialize in networking, encryption and IT security for small businesses. However, their retirement plan consistently under-performs and low overall participation and deferral rates reflect a general lack of appreciation by employees. The workforce is primarily under 35, but the average tenure is eight years. Senior management wanted to engage a financial advisor who could help them improve the plan's performance, increase employee participation and help them better help their employees attain their retirement goals.

THE SOLUTION

Plan Sponsor Consultants of Alpharetta created a plan that illustrates their commitment to comprehensive employee and employer education. By developing a holistic solution that incorporates education, budgeting for retirement savings, and managing overall debt, PSC offers financial wellness that goes far beyond retirement planning.

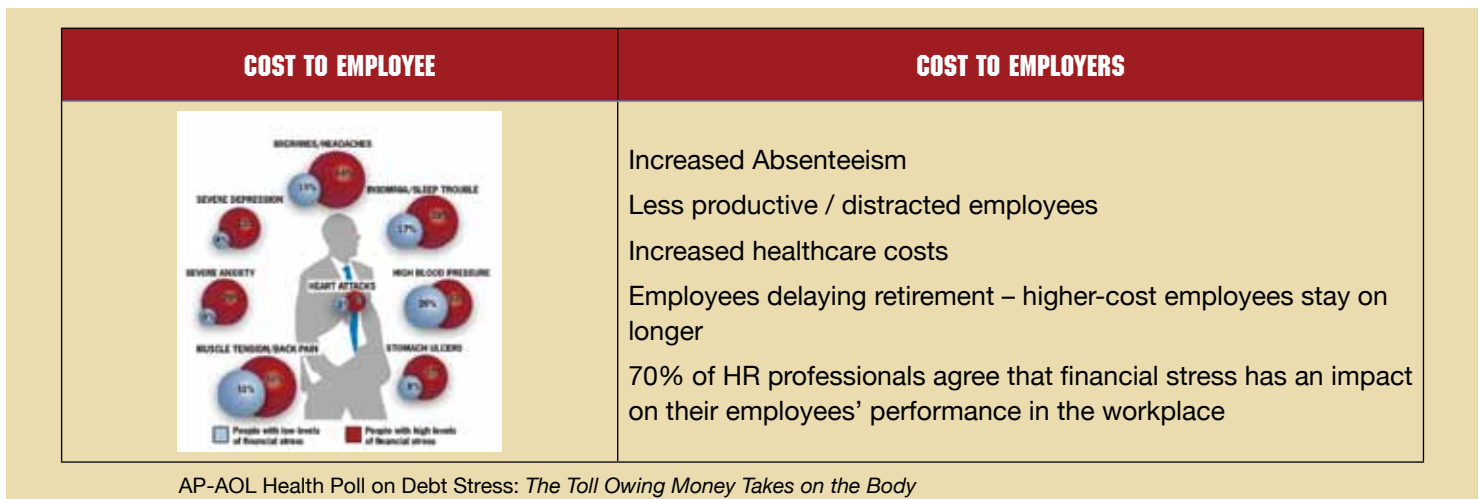

By addressing the bigger picture of all things that affect employees' financial lives, the client realizes measurable and lasting effects which can be seen in their retirement plan statistics but improved financial wellness also serves to retain and motivate employees for the ultimate long-term benefit of the company.

SEEKING TRADITIONAL HELP, THEY FOUND MODERN EXPERTS

The plan sponsor didn't realize the impact that the absence of financial wellness had on their employees and how its effects were impacting more than just their retirement plan. PSC's Financial Wellness program offered them the ability to customize their employee education program in four steps:

- 1. Employer Marketing Support. PSC works with the client to create materials that encourage employees to participate in the Financial Wellness Assessment. The marketing materials in the program are all turn-key, and include everything needed to create an effective marketing campaign. In addition, some internal champions were found within the company who helped encourage their peers to participate in the program.
- 2. Financial Wellness Assessment. Employees were surveyed about their specific needs, making clear the areas where they needed help and received customized individual feedback and guidance facilitated by PSC.
- 3. Solution Modules. The areas identified in the assessment were addressed using both individual online sessions and group employee meetings. The content of the program is designed to meet employees where they are in the retirement planning spectrum and includes modules tailored to employees at different ages and stages of life, from "Kids and Cash" to "The Retirement Zone."
- 4. Results Tracking Reports. PSC tracks the progress of the plan through participation rates, contributions and overall education levels. The effectiveness of the program measures employee progress toward their financial goals, including retirement readiness.*

*Plan Sponsor Consultants has evaluated a variety of Financial Wellness vendors and maintains multiple relationships. While all vendors have several elements in common (e.g. Online Assessment Tool), their approaches reach different demographics more effectively. As such, it is important to consider your employee population when determining which vendor is appropriate for your plan use.

THE CONCLUSION

After the program was in place for six months, the results were measured to reveal meaningful improvements in both retirement plan metrics and employee engagement.

In addition to these quantitative improvements, there was an increase in employee engagement as demonstrated by the number of times employees logged on to their retirement plan website or mobile app to review their accounts or elect to increase their savings rates. And the client was very pleased with a 19% reduction in new loan initiations over the first year after the Financial Wellness program was introduced.

“Overall, the financial wellness program helped the client improve their plan. However, what we are most proud of is that we were able to educate employees about the value of retirement plan savings and the importance of saving early and saving regularly.” said Mike Kane of Plan Sponsor Consultants.
